Contents

RESEARCH

1  From the “Four Cleans” Movement to the Cultural Revolution: The Origins of Factional Conflicts
   by YANG Lijun

25  Social Structure, Practical Needs and Cultural Inheritance: The Case of Osman Batur, His Behavioural Logic and Social Interactions
   by JIAN Zhixiang

47  The Inefficiencies of Legislative Centralisation: Evidence from Provincial Tax Rate-Setting
   by Wei CUI and Zhiyuan WANG

72  All Roads Lead to Rome: Autonomy, Political Connections and Organisational Strategies of NGOs in China
   by SONG Chengcheng, WANG Shizong and Kristen PARRIS

94  Trade Union Elections at Foreign-Owned Chinese Factories
   by Anita CHAN

114  How China Has Attempted to Guide a New and Unwieldy Housing Market
   by CHEN Lin

129  Evolution of the Little Dragons’ Science Network with the Rise of China: A Bibliometric Analysis
   by EUN Jong-Hak

154  A Special Regional Actor in the World: Conceptualising Macao’s Diplomatic Behaviour
   by SONG Weiqing

COMMENTS & NOTES

172  Contextualising China’s Call for Discourse Power in International Politics
   by WANG Hung-jen

190  Decision-Specific Experience and Imitative Behaviour in Foreign Ownership Structure Decisions: Evidence from Large Chinese Firms
   by Diego QUER, Enrique CLAVER and Laura RIENDA

CHINA-ASEAN RELATIONS

207  Chronology of Events: May 2015 to August 2015
   compiled by PING Xiaojuan

211  Important Documents: May 2015 to August 2015
   compiled by PING Xiaojuan
China: An International Journal will be a Quarterly in 2016

We are pleased to announce that the China: An International Journal (CIJ) will increase its annual publication frequency to four issues from 2016. The journal will make its quarterly debut in February 2016 and subsequent releases in the months of May, August and November.

This will mark another key milestone for the journal after its inclusion in the renowned and authoritative interdisciplinary citation indexes of Thomson Reuters—Social Sciences Citation Index®; Journal Citation Reports/Social Sciences Edition; and Current Contents®/Social and Behavioral Sciences—in 2010.

In fact, we made our first circulation adjustment in 2012, increasing the journal frequency from two issues a year to three issues annually. The decision to increase the journal frequency to a quarterly was made in view of the growing volume of quality manuscripts submitted to the CIJ editorial team.

Despite the increased publication frequency, we are committed to the tradition of conducting a comprehensive, impartial and fair review of every manuscript received. We believe that both established and aspiring China scholars will benefit from the insights, critique and expertise of our reviewers. This will facilitate a healthy cross-fertilisation of ideas that leads to a vibrant scholarly community.

On a final note, we would like to extend our gratitude to our authors, reviewers, the esteemed editorial board, libraries and various government and education institutions for their continued support of CIJ.