SPECIAL FEATURE

- 7 Analysis of Taiwan's Strategy against China's Grey Zone Activities in the South China Sea
by William Chih-tung CHUNG

Facing with China's ambition to take control the South China Sea, Taiwan should use its controlled islands as a showcase to demonstrate Taiwan's determination against China's invasion and Taiwan's willingness to be a responsible and negotiable claimant to deal with the sovereign disputations in the region.

- 22 Taiwan's Southbound Drive towards Southeast Asia: Expanding Economic and People-to-People Ties from Ma Ying-jeou to Tsai Ing-wen
by JING Bo-jiun

In sum, from 2008 to 2020, Taiwan's southbound initiatives proved successful in expanding economic ties with ASEAN countries, particularly in trade and investment, tourism and higher education. There are, however, varying results between the Ma Ying-jeou and Tsai Ing-wen's administrations in reducing Taiwan's economic dependence on China.

- 44 Expanding Governance Capabilities: The Experience of AI Implementation in Taiwan
by TING Yu-Jen, HUANG Hsini, LIN Tze-Luen and CHANG Wen-Hsi

The rapid development of AI offers opportunities to improve government capabilities by enhancing government policy planning, implementation and execution of policies, as well as upgrading civil servants' skills and values. The alleviation of problems such as "budget deficit", "performance deficit" and "trust deficit" encountered in global public governance in the long run are outcomes of improved public governance capacity.

- 63 Taiwan's November 2022 Mid-term Election: Before, After and Predictions for the 2024 Presidential Election
by John F COPPER

Recent public opinion polls on feelings for or against the Kuomintang and the Democratic Progressive Party show that support is almost even for both. In other words, the 2024 election at this point in time seems too close to call.

ESSAYS

- 77 China's Pro-Russian Neutrality Position in the Ukraine Crisis as Part of Its "Hybrid" Confrontation with the West
by Vitaly KOZYREV
By providing diplomatic, ideological and economic support for the Kremlin, as well as demonstrating a pro-Russian neutrality in the Ukraine crisis, China is essentially signalling that it is moving to practical steps to create a world order, alternative to the one currently dominated by the United States.
- 89 Understanding Hong Kong's Failure in Zero-COVID Strategy: What Hong Kong Can Learn from Singapore and Macao?
by MOK Wing-hung, Franky Ka-hin CHOI, Gabriel Hoi-huen CHAN and LIU Chi-leung
Hong Kong can consider drawing lesson from Singapore by emulating the method to deal with vaccine hesitancy. With regard to Macao's experience, Hong Kong should learn from Macao's determination to promote the Health Code system and conduct an early and necessary compulsory universal testing.
- 104 Sino-American Relations in the Trump Era
by Ali FATTAH
The Trump administration pursued a hard track trade offensive targeted China and was rooted in US military-defence planning. The Trump administration played a zero-sum game and did not see room for cooperation with China.
- 123 China's Digital Silk Road
by CHUNG Chien-peng
With restrictions on high technology from the United States and the West, China's technological exports might, in time, become less effective or attractive. However, for countries with rudimentary telecommunications infrastructure, inadequate mobile network coverage or an aspiration to maintain their national cyber sovereignty, China's digital Silk Road will remain an avenue to approach.
- 138 Errata: Stability in the Taiwan Strait after the 20th Party Congress of the Chinese Communist Party
